EXHIBITION TEXT

RESIDENT I will consist of works by Raffael Bader, James Dearlove, Lara Cobden, Suhaylah H, Marina Renée-Cemmick, Joe Grieve, Angélique Nagovskaya & Jen Hitchings. Introductions to the individual artists featured in this exhibition are below.

Annually Colstoun Arts invites 6-8 artists to spend a month or more at our home in Scotland producing a cohesive body of work inspired by the house and grounds. The variety of work created by our selected artists and the impact the seasons have played on their work is astonishing.

Colstoun Arts works with each artist to provide learning and development, introduce them to industry experts, and provide them with guidance. The Colstoun Experience goes well beyond the traditional residency. We welcome our artists to become part of our family, experiencing the highs and lows of normal life alongside us whilst also providing a dedicated secluded environment with top class studio facilities to push the boundaries of their practice. The exhibition merely serves as a conclusion on an experience we hope will stick with artists for the rest of their lives.

This programme develops the careers of a handful of artists each year in a meaningful way, it also provides an opportunity for established artists to take a break from their practice. It is hoped that over time the alumni of this programme will begin to help one another and provide meaningful contributions to Landscape, Nature Inspired and British Art.

The residency programme is very relaxed and follows no strict format meaning that the approaches to time spent at Colstoun have been varied. Artists like Lara Cobden have created countless studies leading to an entire collection of work based around the Colstoun landscape at night, whereas artists like Marina Renée-Cemmick and Angélique Nagovskaya have spent time understanding themselves and exploring technical aspects of their practice much more.

COLSTOUN HOUSE

Colstoun Arts and the Colstoun Artist Residency, founded by Colstoun Owner, Artist Manager & Collector McLean Sinclair Parry, is located in ancient family home Colstoun House, in the Scottish countryside.

Thirty minutes east of Edinburgh, underneath the Lammermuir Hills. Colstoun House offers a vast rural landscape, sitting in the heart of 2,000 acres of rolling countryside, farmland and woodland, underneath some of the most beautiful moorlands by the sea.

Since the day it was built Colstoun House has been home to the Broun's. For over 900-years the history and legend has provided the backdrop for a truly special atmosphere of home and heartland.

Colstoun House is also home to Colstoun Gardens, grounds subject to a long-term restoration & redevelopment plan. Surrounded by 100 acres of Victorian Parkland, the sustainably focussed care of this landscape has already progressed 50 acres around the house into wild meadow over the last 3 years.

You will notice pears at Colstoun. The Brouns were given 'The Pear' by Hugo de Gifford who was reputed to be a wizard. The Brouns have protected this Pear for centuries, and the full story of The Pear is only told at the house.

Home to a peaceful pace of life, with farm work and public events casually crossing resident' paths as the seasons cycle, Colstoun is a bastion of scenery, solitude, immersion and introspection for our artists to work within.
